THE JEW AND HIS OATH

The Toronto papers reported that when a Jewish lawyer appeared before a local judge on January 24, for admission to the Bar, the judge requested that he take the oath with his hat on and a Hebrew Bible open at the ten commandments. The Jewish candidate in question refused to comply, stating that he held the oath administered to the other candidates for admission to the bar as binding also upon him. The judge was compelled to administer the usual oath, but promised to investigate the matter as to whether the Jew considers the general oath binding. We congratulate the young Jewish lawyer on the stand he took. In a democratic country where church and state are separated, no distinction should be made between citizen and citizen.

In order to spare the judge any further researches, we wish to inform him that the Jewish citizens of Canada consider the usual oath administered in the courts of law as binding. In fact, any oath invoking the name of God alone, but not associated with any particular creedal or sectarian formula, may be recited by a Jew and is considered binding on him. In the case of orthodox Jews who specify a preference to take the oath on a Hebrew Bible, it is generally coupled with the desire to wear their hats, because of the custom which orthodox Jews have to cover their heads when reading from the Bible or other Jewish religious writings. In fact, the strictly observant orthodox Jew is never about with bare head; a skull cap always covers his head. With the great majority of the younger generation, however, this custom of going about with covered head has fallen into desuetude, excepting when reading from the Hebrew Bible and other Jewish religious writings, when reciting prayers, and when in the synagogue.

For purposes of the civil law and the administration of an oath, unless a Jew so specifies to the contrary, he is entitled to take an oath with bare head, holding the English version of the Bible. We would, however, advise the Court to have a copy of the new English translation of the Hebrew Scriptures or Old Testament, so called, published by the Hebrew Publication Society of Philadelphia, which is universally recognized by Jews as authoritative, and which does not contain between its covers the New Testament. For the use of strictly orthodox Jews who express take that form of an oath which he considers as binding. In matters other than those involving religious scruples, the rabbinic principle of dino d'malchutha dino—The law of the land is the law—may be said to apply to all Jews.

The request naively made by the Toronto judge stirred up unusual interest because it raised the old question of oath more Judaico which has had a long, sad history in Jewish life.

Before going into this question it is worth explaining that no code of law regarded the oath with more sanctity than did the Jewish law. The oath was a matter between God and man; and its sacredness grew out of man's moral conscience. In cases of perjury, the perjurer was not liable to the court but to God Himself. Furthermore, so revered was the act of oath taking, that to such as were suspected of a disposition not to speak the truth or to those known to be of immoral character the oath was not administered. Moreover, according to Biblical law, the oath was administered only in case no evidence, or only insufficient evidence, was forthcoming.

In Jewish law there are several kinds of oaths, the Biblical, the mishnaic and the rabbinic, which vary in many respects. It was customary when the Biblical or mishnaic oath was administered, for the juror to swear by the name of Jhwh whilst holding the Bible or other sacred object in his hands, and whilst the judge admonished the juror and impressed upon him the sacredness and the importance of the oath. The judge warned him also against any mental reservation or ambiguities. In cases, however, where only the rabbinic oath was taken, the juror need not make mention of the name of Jehovah, but merely says "I swear," without the necessity of holding a sacred object in his hand or being admonished by the judge.

It is also interesting to note that according to Jewish law, the oath was restricted to civil courts. In criminal cases no oath was employed because, according to the Jewish principles of jurisprudence, no one charged with a criminal act could be believed even upon an oath. Cases of assault, battery and embezzlement were considered only from the civil side, in regard to liability for damages.

A witness, even in civil matters, was never put on oath in Jewish courts of law, for, according to Jewish jurisprudence, "if we cannot believe him without an oath, we cannot believe him at all." The character of the witness is assumed to be one of probity and above suspicion. In Jewish law there were no oaths for rulers or subjects or priests or officials. All were expected to do their duty. The feeling existed that the multiplication of oaths tended rather to the corruption of morals and the temptation of perjury.

Gentile, he found quite another attitude towards him and the oath from that which he experienced in the Jewish courts. In the secular courts he suffered from many humiliating disabilities, one of these being in regard to the taking of special oaths, designed to disgrace and discredit his race and his religion. Such laws existed in many countries of Europe. A Byzantine law, dating from the tenth century, demanded that a Jew, when swearing, shall have a girdle of thorns around his loins, stand in water, and swear by bereshit bara (the first words of the Bible), so that if he speaks untruth the earth may swallow him as it did Dathan and Abiram. A German collection of laws of the fourteenth century demands that a Jew swearing shall stand on a sow's hide. The laws of Silesia (1422) required him to stand on a three-cornered stool, pay a fine each time he falls, and lose his case if he falls four times. Prussian laws as recent as those modified at the instance of Moses Mendelssohn, prescribed that the Jew taking an oath call down upon himself all the curses and plagues contained in the Bible. Many of these oaths more Judaico were still in force in the early years of the nineteenth century. Adolph Cremieux became celebrated by affecting the abolition of this special kind of Jewish oath in France, and as late as 1902 the Jewish oath existed in Roumania, when it was finally abolished.

The oath more Judaico was characteristic of the attitude of the European nations towards the Jew. It was an attempt to humiliate and single out the Jew from the rest of his fellow-citizens as an inferior moral creature who could not be trusted. Needless to state, this was both unjust and contrary to modern democratic ideas of government in countries where the church is separated from the state and where every citizen, regardless of race, creed or color, is equal before the law.

We are inclined to believe that the Toronto judge's naive request was not tinged by any feelings of anti-Semitism or any desire at discrimination. We think the judge's ignorance of the attitude of the Jew towards the binding character of an oath led him into making the suggestion which the Jewish lawyer repudiated. The incident, however, brings back to Jews the unpleasant memories of the time when Jews did not enjoy the same status before the courts as their fellow-citizens did. In the future it would be best for all concerned never to raise this question again, and for judges to disregard the creed, color or sex of those before them. In the words of Burns, "A man's a man for a' that, and a' that."

Hadassah "Fancy Fair" Bazaar

The various women's organizations and the sisterhoods of the different synagogues are co-operating with the members of Hadassah in the "Fancy Fair" at the Mount Royal Hotel, March 11, 12. The various clubs will each take charge of a booth to be equipped by themselves. Donations are being received, among which are a Russian sable neck-piece donated by A. J. Alexander, to be raffled off on the admission tickets to the Fair.

The Community Entertainers are to put on a minstrel show both nights of the fair. Convensors: Mrs. E. G. Bernstein and Mrs. M. Takefman; publicity committee: Mrs. H. Singer, Miss Sallie Solomon, and Miss Elizabeth Notkin.

Young People's Assembly of the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue

A social meeting of the Young People's Assembly of the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue was held in the Assembly Hall on January 28. The programme included a recitation by Miss Edith Kaufman; song by Mr. Isaac Shapiro; musical duo, Miss B. Sand and Brahm Sand. Mr. Sydney Insky entertained with his impersonations and songs. The feature event of the evening was a "mock wedding." The minister was Frank E. Bender, who entered dressed in the robe of the order and smoking an old clay pipe. Stanley Hart was the bride. He was dressed in a white evening gown covered with jewels. Michael Heft as the groom dressed in the fashion of fifty years ago. The maid of honour was Philip Bernstein, who wore an ultra modern evening gown in pale coloured silk, while the bridesmaids, Milton Greenberg and Sydney Sperber, both wore low cut evening gowns of dark taffeta. All carried bouquets of spinach. The best man, Miss Bessie Moscovitch, assisted the groom and gave him away. Miss Dora Schwartz and Miss Anna Kramer acted as ushers. All were dressed in tuxedos and wore opera hats.

LONDON

HADASSAH BIRTHDAY DINNER

Sixth Anniversary January 20

A banquet was arranged in the Alma Block Hall to celebrate the sixth birthday of the Chapter, and to pay tribute to Mrs. Dunkelman, head of the Toronto Hadassah Chapter, and Mrs. Selick, founder of the work in Canada.

Mrs. M. Fishbein presided, lit the candles on the birthday cake, and welcomed the guests.

The twenty-two members of the Hertzl Girls' Club, of which Mrs. Rebekah Oppenheim is president, acted as a guard of honour, gownned in white and wearing white veils. Later they served as waitresses. Blue and white, the Hadassah colours, made the decorations.

Miss Leah Lewis presented bouquets of roses to the guests of honour.

Mrs. Isidore Goldstick, secretary, in presenting the annual report, told of the organization of the local Chapter six years ago, when the members took on the pledge of Hadassah (Esther) to serve their people. In the past year $200 has been donated to the Palestine Foundation Fund; $100 to the Orphan Fund; $73.75 to the War Memorial Hospital, the city, proceeds from the Hadassah stall at the Streets of Wonderland; $100 to the National Fund; $100 to the Immigration Aid Society, and $53 in shakel fees to headquarters. Summing up the work carried on during the year, Mrs. Goldstick also referred to the death of Mrs. Bardenstein, treasurer of the Chapter and a valued member, and of Mrs. Theresa Fox, the oldest member of the Chapter, and one of the most active.

Speakers of the evening were Mrs. Selick and Mrs. Dunkelman, the former explaining in detail the latest Hadassah venture, the building of an agricultural school for girls in Palestine. Mrs. Dunkelman outlined the Jewish achievements in Palestine.

In the afternoon the Toronto visitors were guests of honour at a meeting of the Daughters of Zion, held at the home of the president, Miss Ida Lewis, where the daughters were formed into a Junior Hadassah Chapter, which will be known as the Daughters of Zion Hadassah Chapter. Addresses by Mrs. Selick and Mrs. Dunkelman followed, in which the Junior Hadassah work, usually the adoption of an orphan at a cost of $200 a year, was explained. The new London Chapter will also sew for the hospitals in Palestine. Flowers were presented to the guests of honour by Miss Leah White, and later tea was served at small tables, decorated with daffodils, with Mrs. Weinstein and Miss Ida Lewis pouring tea.

A HADASSAH CHAPTER ORGANIZED

Mrs. J. Selick and Mrs. D. Dunkelman, of Toronto, officiated at the organization of a new Hadassah Chapter. The Daughters of Zion, of which Miss Ida Lewis is president, became the Daughters of Zion Hadassah Chapter, at the home of Miss Lewis, Hamilton Road. A feature of the occasion was the presentation of a corsage of sweet peas to Miss Lewis. Flowers were also given to the two guests of honour, the presentation being made by Miss Leah White.

The new organization is a Junior Chapter of Hadassah and will adopt a Jewish orphan at an expense of $200 a year. The members will also sew for form a children's chapter in London, to be known as a Mascot Chapter.

At the close of the meeting tea was served, Mrs. Weinstein and Miss Ida Lewis officiating.

GIVE WM. AGRANOVE GOLDEN CERTIFICATE AND CLOCK

Wm. Agranove, who left to make his home in Toronto, was honoured by the committee of the Palestine Foundation Fund this week, when he was presented with a golden book certificate, this being the highest honour which Zionists can confer. The presentation occurred at a supper party given by Mr. and Mrs. I. Goldstick, when the guests were: Mr. Agranove, chairman of the Palestine Foundation Fund; Mrs. Agranove and the members of the committee. Fifty dollars was collected for the fund. Mrs. Goldstick was assisted during the supper hour by Mrs. B. Lewis, Mrs. Max Lerner and Miss Leah Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. William Agranove were also presented with a clock. The presentation was made at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Agranove, Dundas Street, at a farewell supper party arranged in their honour. About twenty friends were present.

Mrs. M. Fishbein, president of Hadassah in London, entertained the out-of-town guests, Mrs. Dunkelman and Mrs. Selick, at dinner on Sunday noon. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. H. Yarmovsky, of Strathroy, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Fink, and Mr. and Mrs. Isidore Goldstick.

Mrs. Max Lerner held a tea in honour of Mrs. D. Dunkelman and Mrs. J. Selick, on Monday afternoon, January 21. Little Minnie Ginsburg recited and played the piano. Assistants were Mrs. William Agranove, Mrs. Nathan Agranove and Mrs. Holiff.

KINGSTON, ONT.

Harry Abramsky has left for Boston, Mass., and will spend a few weeks with his sister, Mrs. A. G. Gould, of Brookline.

Sherbrooke, Que.

Mrs. M. Greenberg entertained at a surprise party on January 27, in honour of Miss Annie Black. The house was decorated with serpentines and cut flowers. There were games and dancing. The guest of honour was presented with gifts. Following a string she found them hidden in all parts of the house. About twenty-five guests included Misses Annie Black, Bessie Echenberg, Kate Weinstein, B. Steinberg, Elca Vineberg, Hilda Greenovitch, Doris Greenovitch, Fanny Goldman, Bessie Weinstein, Reva Echenberg, and Messrs. M. Smith, Sam Weinstein, Hyman Goldman, Jack Steinberg, Alex. Bulkis, Louis Gardner, Leon Echenberg, Sam Echenberg.

Mrs. Joseph Schwartz has returned home from an extended trip to the Gaspe coast.

PROMINENT MAGYARS SEIZED IN BOMB PLOTS

Budapest (J.T.A.).—Sensational developments are expected from the arrest here of several leading members of the Awakening Magyars, said to be connected in recent bomb outrages. The prisoners include prominent persons whose names authorities decline to divulge. It is believed that at least some of the persons, high up in social and political circles, were implicated in the recent outrage in Chisnad whereby three Jews were killed and scores injured.

REVIEW JUNIOR SECTION

Any girl or boy in Canada (or for that matter any Canadian girl or boy who is not in Canada) is welcome to join our Junior Section. Which means, of course, that they are also welcome to contribute stories, poems, letters, riddles, jokes, puzzles and the fifty-eleven other interesting odds-and-ends that tend to make a page delightful. So, come along. Don't be a slacker! Mail your letters to Cousin Judith or Cousin David, CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW, 319 Bay Street, Toronto.

Dear Girls and Boys:

You know what partners are, of course! But did you ever hear of a silent partner? And do you know what a silent partner is? We e-e-l-l, y'see, the silent partner is the member of the firm who is seldom heard from, and who is not the least bit actively interested in the happenings that concern the firm. Understandest thou? Because I'm afraid our Junior Section has a great many silent partners who like to read the letters and stories, but who never quite get around to joining our group. So here's my idea! Let's have a sizzingly energetic time getting our friends and class mates and club mates (and maybe even a grown-up father or mother, or uncle or two - if they behave as Junior Sectionites should, that is) to join our cousin family. Perhaps if a great many wish to join we may have to have cousinful elections, and pretty soon we'll have His Cousinful Excellency The Mayor and Her Cousinly High Exquisiteness The Opener of the Mail Bag. And so forth and so on! Come then! While the spirit moves you. Open your ink bottle with a swift finger movement, that will scare the "Demons of Putting-it-offness" away, and fill out this little slip at once, and mail it right away.

REVIEW JUNIOR SECTION:

I would like to join the Cousin-Family of the REVIEW JUNIOR SECTION.
My name is and I live at
I am years old.

We've received only three entries for the competition on "Winter," so we will have to wait another week for the laggards. The contest will close on February 15, positively, so please see that your mail arrives by then. Cousin Judith was really terribly worried when your letters (we expected oodles of 'em, you know) did not arrive. She thought that you had been out getting local colour for your essays a la skating or skiing, and had been frozen to the hillside... but I persuaded her into thinking that you were having too wonderful a time outdoors, to take even a second off to write about it. Which was probably right. And which also makes me think of something else. Ever notice how some snowflakes are so much bigger'n, fatter'n and thicker'n others? Wonder whether they're the greedier ones, who stow away all sorts of things on their way down from on high. And what sort of things the things they stow away are? Because if they were to retain impressions of all that they saw, they might have a great deal to tell us. Which we might enjoy listening to. Think it over, and next time a wet snowflake touches your eye-lash, try to figure out what its message is.

And forget not about the contest.

Cousin David.

MY BEST FRIEND

By Fanny Fleming

The golden sunset its exquisite rays were shedding over the fair earth, When we children luxuriously tired of play,

As we sat thinking one of us said,
"Let us of our best friends talk."
"My best friend," said little Mary Green,
"Is my big collie dog, Teddy."
"Cause one day when a-swimming I did go,
A-drowning he thought I was,
And into the water he did jump and ashore did pull me."
"My best friend," said Jimmy Low, who loves to talk of sports,
"Is dad, who gets me 'most everything I want,
For my dad is a 'sport.'"
"My best friend," said I, "is my mother, who is so good to me."

Besides:

There's thousands of birds, who in the air do fly,
There's thousands of flowers who the fair earth do cover,
There's thousands of bees who hum so sweet,
There's thousands of snowflakes, who cover the earth with a blanket so white;
But o'er the whole world may you roam,
You never can have but one MOTHER.

Dear Cousin Judith:

Here I am again. I am awfully glad that you received my letter for the contest. I am so anxious to hear what this surprise is I can hardly wait until the time comes.

We sure have some clever cousins belonging to the "Junior Section." Why some of the stories and poems are indeed very interesting. Maybe some day I will join the authors' club. Who knows?

I have a hobby for books as I see Fannie Fleming has. I have read some of the books which she mentions and find them very interesting. I have read a number of books which are very interesting, such as "Little Women" and "Good Wives," by Louisa M. Alcott, also "A Sweet Girl Graduate," "Wild Kitty," "Miss Nonentity," "A Little Mother to the Others," etc., all by Mrs. L. T. Meade. I have found "Oliver Twist," by Dickens, very thrilling and interesting. There is a moving picture taken from the book featuring the well loved child actor, Jackie Coogan. I have read a number of interesting and thrilling poems by Shakespeare, Milton, Tennyson, etc.

I certainly thing that it would be very nice, as Fanny Fleming says, if all us cousins could meet personally. Though it would be very inconvenient for the cousins who do not live in this city.

I would love to read all the essays on "My Best Friend." I am sure I will find them all very interesting.

When the JEWISH REVIEW comes I am so interested in the "Junior Section" I can't get to the page quick enough. I think it would be a good idea if the "Junior Section" had some subject for discussion. I am sure it would add much interest to the letters.

I must close now as my letter is growing long. With best wishes to you and cousin David. Wishing the club every success.

I remain your loving cousin,

Primrose.

P.S.—You will soon hear from me again, if I may write.

Dear Primrose:

There is no day better than "to-day," so do join our "Authors' Club" now. Have you received your prize yet? It is too bad but the only way we can meet so far, is through the medium of our page, and we really ought to become quite well acquainted too.

Indeed you may write just as often as you have time to. The larger the letter, the better we'll like it.

I should think you are a book-worm! How do you like the idea of a "winter"

WITTY RETORTS OF FAMOUS FOLK

An obscure preacher called to see Spurgeon one day, but was told by the maid that the great man was engaged. "Tell him," said the caller, "that the servant of the Lord wishes to see him." On receiving the message, Spurgeon thus instructed the maid: "Tell the servant of the Lord that I am engaged with his Master."

This recalls Spurgeon's racy rejoinder to the young preacher who said to him: "I go to the pulpit and talk, and think nothing about it." "That," retorted Spurgeon, "is what the people think about it, too."

A naval captain of the older school received a young cadet on his first joining the ship with the remark: "Well, youngster, the old story, I suppose—the fool of the family sent to sea." "Oh, no, sir," replied the youngster, "that's all been altered since your day!"

Numerous racy retorts stand to the credit of lawyers and judges. "I only took them for a joke," said a man in court, who was charged with stealing boots. "How far did you carry them?" asked the judge. "A mile and a half, my lord." "I think," rejoined the judge, "that was carrying a joke too far."

It is told that a lady once asked Samuel Johnson for a candid criticism of her poems. She received a reply which put all writers of testimonials and recommendations under an imperishable debt to the Doctor. "Madam, nobody has a right to place another under such a difficulty that he must either hurt the person by telling the truth, or hurt himself by telling what is not true."

To the credit of Disraeli more than one racy retort may be set, writes N. Macleod Caie in The Weekly Scotsman. An ambitious author sent a bulk volume to him, and requested his opinion of it. "Sir," came the reply, "I have lost no time in reading your book."

Queen Victoria had a remarkable facility in making retorts. An unfortunate courier risked at the Royal dinner-table a sample of his wit. The Queen at once met him with this devastating silence: "Sir, we are not amused."

A boaster said to Lord Palmerston, "I'm a self-made man!" "Then," retorted Palmerston, "you took a great responsibility off the Creator."

LEARNIN'

Labour for learnin' afore ye grow old.
For learnin' is better nor silver and gold!
Silver and gold it will vanish away,
But learnin' itself it will never decay,
And a man without learnin' wearin' good clothes,
Is like a gold ring in a pig's nose.

(Patrick MacGill).

The action of the Government in permitting Jewish refugees to find a home in Canada has called out the best efforts of a few home writers who relieve their feelings and contribute the result to the vast wealth of daily newspaper mailbox literature. One result, discovered in the Star of Monday, is from the pen of a gentleman who is a "Liberal and a strong supporter of missions among foreigners."

He writes that "the class of immigrants most to be desired are English-speaking folk from the British Isles, people willing to go on the land." He points to police court records for the "predominance of European names connected with the infraction of certain well-known and much-discussed laws" and wonders what "sinister influence has been brought to bear on the Government" to allow an influx of Jews.

Directly under this letter is one signed "Barnardo Boy, 1898." The second writer tells of how he was shamefully ill-treated, scantily clothed and underfed on a farm where he was sent as a child. On the front page of the same issue of the Star is an account of the investigation into the second recent tragic suicide among farm boys living on the land with English-speaking folk from the British Isles.

In face of this the writer of the first letter might be urged to support strongly missions right here instead of among the foreigners. It could be said to him, also, that as long as Jews have been emigrating to Canada from the so-called backward South European countries, not once has a boy been delivered up through the child labor market to such conditions as might make him prefer death. Nor has there once been such infraction of certain well-known, but not much discussed, laws of humanity as to necessitate investigations that reveal something really sinister in an important side of Canadian development.

Toronto Italians gave a colorful touch to the Martinelli concert but not in the style we thought they might. Preferring to sit with them away from the frozen faces of the Nordic hinterland world we live in where people never weep and have long since forgotten how to laugh, if, indeed, it was ever polite to know how, we got seats in the top gallery expecting to meet the Italians there. But it was not until we found ourself inundated by a flood of friends, relatives and other admirers of the National Chorus that we realized in what foolish error we were.

The Italians were not in the gallery, they were on the first floor in the first rows. They had bought well and in time and from afar we could see them resplendent with very red red, and glittering combs, high coiffures and an abnormal percentage of children all dressed up and enjoying good music. One little girl flying the Italian colors from her shoulder carried a basket of flowers to Martinelli and he bent over her hand and kissed it with the lingering grace of a courtier saluting a fine lady. Her gift expressed the greeting of a very little Italy in Toronto to Martinelli, man to man.

Jews though much stronger in numbers are afraid to be that natural here in the hinterland. When a Jewish artist comes here he is a Russian Heifetz or a Russian Lhevinne and the Jewish ticket-buyer, if he thrills with pride, has to do it covertly, without demonstration. Isa Kremer, that consummate artist, came here billed as a European balladist and sang in many languages until she and the audience agreed that nearly every one present preferred Yiddish and she might as well sing in that as anything. But Rosa Raisa had more Goyim present and more de-Judaized Jews and was more reserved. However, she did admit there were Jews present when she sang "Ejfi, Eili," but Sophie Braslau refused to give a sign. When asked for this song, hackneyed though it is and sick of it though she may have been, she could have been gracious enough to sing it and thus recognize that the backbone of her audience was as Jewish as she. Doubtless she would have in the centers made metropolitan by many temperamental racial groups that stamp a bold, definable pattern in the communal fabric. But here in the hinterland where you pack up your emotions and standardization is the watchword? No. This is one way we tell we're in the hinterland.

WINNIPEG

Re-united after 19 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Gross, of the Jewish Old Folks' Home, are happy, through the efforts of Mr. A. Slobinsky, president of the home, who obtained the release of Mrs. Gross from the Brandon Insane Asylum, after she was an inmate there for the past nineteen years. Mrs. Gross is 69 years of age and Mr. Gross 73. Nineteen years ago this couple arrived from Russia. On board the ship Mrs. Gross fell and hurt her head and on her arrival here she was treated, but at the time the doctors were unable to aid her, so she was taken to the Brandon asylum. In recent years the Brandon Jewish Ladies' Aid Society, of which Mrs. Crystal is president, have kept in touch with the case and notified Mr. Slobinsky of the Old Folks' Home, who made several trips to Brandon to investigate the case. Following years of treatment and attention, at last Mrs. Gross was able to be discharged and, through the efforts of Mr. Slobinsky and Mrs. Crystal and her committee, a home among her own people and a re-union with her husband awaited Mrs. Gross upon her discharge from the hospital.

Mrs. M. J. Finkelstein entertained at a reception Monday afternoon, January 28, in the vice regal suite of the Royal Alexandra Hotel, in honour of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Charles K. Ripstein, of Montreal. Mrs. I. Ripstein and Mrs. M. H. Abremovich assisted the hostess in receiving the guests at the entrance of the drawing-room. The tea table, centred with a low silver bowl of hyacinths and roses and adorned with a candelabra holding rose candles, was presided over by Mrs. Norman Tobias, Mrs. Dave Perles and Mrs. Frank Huffman, and assisting were Mrs. N. L. Green, Mrs. J. P. Weidman, Mrs. Douglas Rosen, Miss Pearl Finkelstein, Miss Flora Levi, Miss Anne Levi and Miss Elizabeth Wodlinger.

In honour of Miss Bertha Ackman, a bride-elect of this month, Miss Aida Phillips entertained at a mah jong and bridge on Sunday afternoon. The table was effectively decorated with quantities of hyacinths, tulips and azaleas, and adorned with a miniature bride. Miss Bell Richmond did the tea honours for the first hour, and was later relieved by Mrs. Phillips. The guests included Bertha Ackman, Rose Glazerman, Florence Melman, Bessie Cohen, Rose Shapiro, Laura Eisenstein, Betty Lieberman, Ada Lieberman, Sophie Plottel, Rose Pollin, Fanny Rusoff, Bell Richmond and Aida Phillips.

YIDDISH CEASES TO BE AN OFFICIAL LANGUAGE IN UKRAINE

Moscow (J.T.A. Mail Service).—The language question in the Ukraine which on account of its complicated nature has been causing constant difficulty, has now been finally regulated by the recognition of Russian and Ukrainian as the two official languages of the country. Formerly Yiddish, too, was one of the official languages.

Correspondence between the All-Ukrainian Executive Committee and the central and local institutions will be carried on exclusively in Ukrainian. In the law courts, however, both official languages will be employed. In the elementary schools the general language of instruction will be Ukrainian, but in those districts where the majority of the population is non-Ukrainian, the language of instruction will be Russian, Yiddish, Polish or German according to the circumstances.

ZANGWILL A "WOBLER"—A VOICE FROM INDIA

London (J.T.A. Mail Service).—The Indian press of the last week of November just arrived here has a deal to say about Mr. Israel Zangwill's address to the American Jewish Congress.

The "Simla Times" calls it a long and bitter address, and thinks that Mr. Zangwill does not overdraw his gloomy picture. The "Bombay Chronicle" writes: Mr. Zangwill, who wobbled on the subject at the critical juncture when the present chaotic and unjust system of Palestine rule was being hatched, is now apparently fast-footed against Palestinian Zionism once again. He is in the United States to wage an anti-Zion fight against the wealthy and influential American Zionists. All to the good. Every little helps.

It is with equal pleasure now that I take this opportunity to tell you that your good wishes for our venture have been fulfilled.

During the year and a half we have been in business we have tried at every opportunity to give the best value and the most courteous service in Toronto.

We have instituted a policy which guarantees a refund within a reasonable length of time to every customer whose purchase does not meet her exact requirements.

Our policy of fair dealing and low margins has made our shop so popular that double floor space became necessary, so we are opening our second floor with ten more fitting rooms.

All the wonderful suits and frocks for spring will be on display there in the very near future.

Ninety per cent. of the frocks at Clayton's cannot be seen in any other shop. Everyone is cordially invited to visit our new floor when it is opened.

With thanks to our many customers and friends,

Sincerely yours,

for Clayton's Limited.

RABBI MAYER SOLOMON OF JERUSALEM IN TORONTO

Rabbi Mayer Solomon, superintendent of the Nathan Strauss Soup Kitchen of Jerusalem, is here on behalf of the Jerusalem Orphans' Home for Girls. The Orphanage is conducted efficiently and along modern lines. The orphaned girls are well cared for and are being taught different handicrafts in order that they might grow up to be self-supporting and useful citizens of our homeland. They are also being given a good education. Rabbi Solomon is himself highly esteemed in Jerusalem and should be warmly received by Toronto Jewry. The local treasurer is Mr. S. Weber, 86 University Avenue.

AN OPEN LETTER FROM THE BALFOURS

EDITOR,

CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW:

In view of the erroneous conception gathered by a great many of the audience which attended the Balfour "Open Night" at the Y.M.H.A. Sunday evening, January 27, the Balfour Club wish it to be known that they neither asked for nor received any of the proceeds of the evening. The evening was held entirely for the financial benefit of the "Y" and the entertainment of its patrons. Furthermore, that the admittance of the overflowing crowd was directly due to an oversight on the part of the Y.M.H.A. official at the door.

(Signed) S. VAROFKY,
Lit Chairman Balfour Club.

SHRA'S

Pat Rooney and Marion Bent, in a new musical act, "Shamrock," will head next week's bill at Shea's Theatre. The piece was written for them by Edgar Allan Woolf, Cliff Hess and Joe Santley supplying the lyrics and music. A cast of twenty, with a jazz band, will present the offering. Six dancing girls are in the act, including Eva Marcagne and Anita Nieto. "Shamrock" is said to be an entire musical revue condensed into vaudeville measure.

on Air." The title explains the plot, and the story is further proof that misfortune is the best kind of fun, and here is another play to perfection. "My Daddy" is the title of a skit played by Broomstick Elliott and Babe La Tour, their first appearance as a team in a combination of singing, dancing and patter.

Moments of Melody will be offered by Laura Ormsbee, assisted by Jack Neal. Both play the violin and both sing. Miss Ormsbee, in addition, being a pianist. Ross and Edwards will present their comedy skit, "The Two Bull Garians," lyrics by Alex. Gerber, and music by Jack Egan. Pat and Jules Le Volo have a wire-walking novelty with which to top off the vaudeville.

WILLIAMS' PIANO CLUB SOON TO CLOSE

The extraordinary privileges and advantages of the Williams' Piano Club have never appealed more strongly to citizens of Toronto than in this year's Club—the fifteenth of its kind.

Already over 150 of the 200 memberships offered have been taken, and the present rate of selling would indicate that the Club will close very soon.

Every year a number of intending purchasers are disappointed through waiting until it is too late, and all the memberships are taken.

This Club is truly the home-makers' opportunity. It enables parents to give the children, whose birthright it is to know and enjoy the inexhaustible beauties and delights of music, the opportunity to purchase a piano—so conveniently now—when the child should be taking lessons, and not have to miss the golden-age period through waiting for a more convenient time. When the extraordinary privileges and features accorded to club members are considered it is not to be wondered at that the citizens of Toronto await this event with interest and flock to take advantage of it.

First among these privileges are the terms of payment—$6.00 cash and $2.00 weekly with no interest charged—surely allows the humblest home to be able to secure a piano, the regular price of which is $470.00, the Club price is $337.00, a straight saving of $133.00.

The protective insurance clause gives the family the piano without further charge in the case of the death of the Club member, and the relief insurance gives the privilege, should a member be taken sick or become unemployed, of making half-payments for as long a period as he has previously paid in full.

A Club member can still further reduce the special Club price and increase the saving by making payments faster than the Club terms call for, and they also have the privilege of exchanging their piano at any time within a year for one of greater value, if sold at the regular retail price. With each piano is given a stool.

The Williams Company extend an invitation to all to call and see the extraordinary value which is offered in the Club piano, and to prove for themselves that the features are exactly as represented in every particular, without a single thing hidden or unexplained.

For the convenience of those who are unable to call during the day the Club offices at 145 Yonge Street are open in the evenings. The Club is limited to 200 members. Those interested in a new and guaranteed piano at extraordinary value are advised to call without delay.
